Friends of Boston Attorney Now Believe He Is Assured of Seat on the Supreme Court Bench

Washington, April 1.—The Senate Judiciary committee sub-committee voted three to two today to recommend confirmation of Louis D. Brandeis as associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

It is believed by Brandeis' supporters that the full committee will adopt the report of the sub-committee and that the Senate will finally accept the report of the full committee and vote to confirm Brandeis.

The sub-committee will report its action to the main committee Monday.

Japan Will Shut Door of Orient, Says Sherman

Washington, April 1.—The "open door" in the Orient will be closed by Japan unless the United States and the Western European powers help to force Japan to open it, says Sherman.

Y. Sherman of Illinois stated today in an open letter to the Saturday Disarmament Committee of the New York Republican Club.

He declared that Japan had taken advantage of the weakness of China and the war in Europe to tighten her grip in the East in a manner directly violating her treaty pledges with the United States.

"Although technically at war, she has taken no steps to disarm and is conserving her army navy and resources for some future emergency, while the other powers will emerge from this present struggle exhausted," Sherman says.

"Nearly every paragraph of Japan's demands are in open violation of her declared purpose. It is difficult to resist the conclusion that if the American sense and action of powers must do more than merely protest. The protest has apparently delayed but has not, in my opinion, checked the further progress of Japan."

SCHILLER'S FATHER IS ENGLISH

Mother was German, Says Stowaway Who Captured Ship; Real Name Hudson; He Tells of Plot

By International News Service.

New York, April 1.—The stowaway of Ernest P. Schiller, who single-handed captured the British freighter Matopos and her crew of fifty-seven, was complicated today by the discovery that Schiller was the son of an Englishman and is in reality named Hudson. He was brought to New York today and is now in a cell at police headquarters.

Schiller also revealed to the police, according to detective Captain Tunney, that he and four Germans planned to plant dynamite on a big ocean liner sailing from New York to capture it on the high seas and there to blow it up. His accomplices got "red feet" but he went on alone and sailed the Matopos.

IN SALES FOR AWHILE.

"My father was an Englishman named Charles Hudson, and my real name is Clarence Hudson," said Schiller. "My mother was a German. Her name was Anna Korb. I was born in Pittsburgh, and we lived there until I was eleven years old. Then my parents separated and I went with my mother to Germany, where she remained until just before the war. Then I went to England."

"I first got a place in a submarine construction plant at Cumberland, so as to get the English plane and send them to Germany, but I was detected with some points and was discharged. Afterward I went to work in a textile mill."

"I came to the United States in April a year ago and went to various places, among them Salem, Mass."

"When I came here I arranged with four Germans to blow up a big liner. We got a room in a house on West Twelfth street, near the pier where the liner docked, and watched the loading of the cargo. We planned to steal on board just before one of the liners sailed, but the other men got cold feet."

GOT THE WRONG SHIP.

"Then we went to Hoboken, where we planned to capture another liner. We were drinking a lot, so I don't remember, but I think the name of the vessel was El Espana. I suppose I made a mistake and got what became the Matopos. I don't know what became of the other men."

Unidentified Boy Killed in Elevator Well

An unidentified boy, about seven years old, was instantly killed today by a fall in the freight elevator well of the Jordan building, No. 77 Bedford street. The police of the Longacre street station believe he was delivering bundles in the building.

Frank Donovan, the operator of the freight elevator, who is on the Kingston side of the building, told the police that he had passed the fourth floor when he heard a cry and stopped the car. On looking over the side of the elevator he saw a boy dangling from one of the hanging chains near the fourth floor. He felt he could reach him the boy fell to the bottom of the well. The boy's name was not known.

FOUR AMERICANS WOUNDED IN FIRST BATTLE; VILLA'S DEAD, 30

By H. M. STANSBURY.

At Paso, Tex., April 1.—(Special to the American.)—The official reports from Mexico show that United States troops and Carranzistas have been in a running fight with the Villistas since last Monday.

The total casualty list among American soldiers is not yet complete, but it is feared this number will be increased as there has been fighting since General Pershing's message was started on its way to the border.

Thirty Villistas are reported to have been killed and many wounded. Colonel George A. Dodd, with troops from the Seventh or Tenth cavalry, led the fighting. This engagement took place early Wednesday either on Ranch Guerrero or in that immediate vicinity.

The band of Villistas numbered approximately 150. It is thought to include some men from the Carranzista command. The first attack is believed to have been made by a small detachment, which was later supported by two other small columns which had been deployed on either side of the Carranzista line.

VILLA GENERAL KILLED.
The Villistas are believed to have made a stand for several hours but were finally routed, leaving behind them two machine guns and much ammunition.

Elihu Hernandez, the Villa general in command, is officially reported to have been killed.

A later report said that Pablo Lopez, who took part in the Carranzista battle, was overthrown and wounded after Colonel Dodd's troops had taken the Carranzista position.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
Lopez is known to have been wounded in the fighting at Columbus and it is believed that he is still in the hands of the Carranzistas.

By International Film Service.

San Antonio, Tex., April 1.—The result of the first battle with the American troops will still the hearts of the Villistas. The Carranzistas, however, stand up in front of American troops. Now they have learned that the Carranzistas are not to be trifled with.

VILLA FLEES SOUTHWARD.
A telegraphic dispatch received in El Paso reported that Villa passed "Chihuahua" to the south, on the night of Friday. He was going rapidly in the direction of Chihuahua City, which is but sixty miles distant from last point.

General Bell is said to have reported to General Pershing that Carranzista troops, the Carranzistas considered at least, as received information of a plan to make an immediate attack on Chihuahua City.

VILLA LED FIGHTING.
Villa was present at Guerrero and led the fighting. He was seen with his forces taking part in the battle with him in the direction of Chihuahua and south.

The original report that the entire Carranzista force was executed is now positively denied by General Bell. He says the strength of Carranzista troops is estimated at 1,000 men.

along with individual views of each of the members, giving their reasons for their votes.

Quick action is believed by the full committee in order to get the appointment before the Senate at the earliest possible date.

Brandeis' nomination was sent to the Senate on January 25 by President Wilson to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench caused by the death of Justice Lamar.

When the appointment is placed before the Senate a protracted and bitter fight will again be made to prevent his confirmation. But the Senate is believed to have been by the "Old Guard" of the Republican party, but Brandeis supporters declare they will have a solid majority when the confirmation comes to a vote.

The appointment of Mr. Brandeis aroused conflicting storms of opposition and support, which came to a head in hearings before the subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Brandeis was nominated January 25, and the hearings on his nomination lasted till late in March.

The grounds upon which opposition to Mr. Brandeis is currently based include charges that he lacked the "judicial temperament."

GERMANS

By CHARLES F. BURRILL. Sent by International News Service. Paris, April 1.—German troops are now at their terrible attack against the fortifications of Verdun. The attack is being made from the east bank of the Meuse during the night.

WAR SUMMARY

Official details today, following the first announcement of an air raid by Zeppelins over eastern and northeastern coast points in England, related the loss of one of the Zeppelins and capture of its crew off the Thames estuary. The air machine had been damaged so that it was forced to descend. It fell into the hands of a British naval patrol, which took off the crew before the Zeppelin sank.

By International News Service.
New York, April 1.—Furnace secretary of State Robert H. Rosen, entertained Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Ellen Root, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts and Major-General Leonard Wood at luncheon.

Robert H. Rosen was a classmate of Theodore at Harvard and was successively Assistant Secretary of State and Secretary of State in Roosevelt's second administration, succeeding Root in the latter position when Root was elected to the Senate from New York.

Read the leading conservative of the Republican party. As presiding officer of the Chicago convention of 1912, he presided through the program by which Roosevelt was defeated for the presidential nomination. Later he proposed a national justification of what Roosevelt denounced as a theft.

Henry Cabot Lodge is one of the foremost stand-patters of the Senate. He is a life long friend of Roosevelt, and the only man in Washington during the Roosevelt regime who dared address the President as "Theodore."

SENSATION CREATED.
General Leonard Wood is the man whom Roosevelt advanced by extraordinary promotion from the post of surgeon to head of the army.

These four were the closest advisers Roosevelt had as President. They got on together as Mr. Baruch's luncheon within two months of the concluding of the Chicago conference created a political sensation.

There has been rumors recently that Roosevelt and Root were not as far apart as was generally supposed. The luncheon, following closely upon the storm that George W. Aldridge

He believes that would be possible if the safe company of State. An understanding, therefore, is said to have been reached between him and Roosevelt whereby he will throw to Roosevelt rim, and in the primary fight which is under way in Massachusetts, he will go as far toward swinging the State delegation to Roosevelt as he may without endangering his own re-election to the Senate.

Mr. Hahn, of course, is devoted to the interests of the Colonel. General Wood attended the conference purely in a military capacity, yet not without a conference, as will appear.

LEONARD WHALES WELSH

Brishier, Putting Up Game Battle, Beaten All the Way; Freddie Badly Marked Up.

NEW YORK, April 1.—(By AP.) Leonard, the New York boxer, outpointed Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion, in their ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

The vast throng which jammed the arena expected to witness a tame sparring exhibition. Instead it viewed one of the fastest ten-round bouts ever seen in New York.

Welsh landed the first knock-out punch in the third round, but Leonard, after a brief respite, came back with a vengeance, and the fight was a close one.

Freddie was badly marked up, and Leonard was the victor by a unanimous decision.

Welsh was bleeding from the nose in the fifth round and was in the eye in the seventh. Leonard was out over the left eye in the sixth.

Leonard was practically every round, despite the fact that Welsh was carrying the fight as well as he could.

In the seventh round Leonard tried desperately to knock out Welsh, but was unable to do so.

MYTHICAL TEAM TO GATHER

Walter Camp's All-American Eleven Will Be Guests of Syracuse University.

SYRACUSE, April 1.—For the first time in football history an All-American eleven will gather upon April 15 the members of the 1915 mythical team selected by Walter Camp will be the guests of the Syracuse University Athletic Association at the annual athletic dinner in the John D. Archbold gymnasium.

The eleven members of the first team were sent out this week and already acceptance has been received from a majority of the team. Not one has said it would be impossible to attend. There is every reason to expect all the players will be present at the same table with Walter Camp, who has agreed to be the principal speaker.

The first team selected for the mythical team have been selected by Walter Camp, who has agreed to be the principal speaker.

Mr. Wilson Should Expose This Conspiracy

MR. WILSON has publicly warned the people that there is a conspiracy to manufacture false reports of conditions in Mexico.

Senators Lodge, Smoot and Gallinger have separately requested Mr. Wilson to name the men and interests engaged in this conspiracy.

The request is reasonable. It is more than reasonable. The Senators owe an obligation to the country to make this request.

AND PRESIDENT WILSON OWES IT TO HIMSELF AND TO THE COUNTRY TO MAKE A PLAIN, DEFINITE ANSWER.

If President Wilson trumped up a fictitious charge, manufactured in his imagination, he ought to be man enough to say so.

If President Wilson has any facts to back up his public allegation he ought to be purist enough to state them. Either there is a conspiracy to falsify Mexican news and to create hostile feeling or there is not.

Either President Wilson has knowledge of such a conspiracy or he has not. Mr. Wilson has already issued a proclamation to the public asserting that there is such a conspiracy.

There are many Senators and any number of well-informed newspaper men who do not believe a word of Mr. Wilson's allegation to be true.

It is therefore up to Mr. Wilson to do something to make his allegation good.

If there are conspirators, Mr. President, name them. If you know any man or any interest which has conspired to spread false and incendiary news reports of Mexican happenings, Mr. Wilson, then you should name that man or that interest.

If you do not make a definite reply to the demand of these United States Senators for names and facts, the country, Mr. Wilson, will be forced to the conclusion that YOU HAVE MADE SERIOUS CHARGES WITHOUT ANY FOUNDATION IN FACT.

You have seen fit, Mr. Wilson, to cast suspicion upon the motives and the patriotism and the conduct of American news agencies, American newspapers, American public men and American Senators and Representatives in Congress, and this you have done in a vague and anonymous fashion that creates in the public a feeling of resentful suspicion and gives none of those upstart any opportunity to defend their conduct and their characters.

The anonymous attack, Mr. Wilson, is always the weapon of the political slanderer and the political coward.

A President of the United States should never stoop to such methods.

Under the circumstances, Mr. Wilson, you must come out in the open in order to save your own reputation for truthfulness.

If you do not answer the challenge of Senators Gallinger and Lodge and give names and facts to back up your anonymous accusations, no reasonable man will thereafter doubt that the accusations were manufactured in your own imagination.

You have the whole Secret Service of the United States at your orders. If there is or has been a conspiracy such as you have declared there is, you MUST know at least some of the conspirators' names and some things they have done.

Then tell the names and tell the facts.

You owe that much to your own reputation, Mr. Wilson. If you desire the American people to believe you to be a man of scrupulous truthfulness and fairness.

Results of Reactionary Leadership in Bay State Legislature

SEVERAL Republican members of the reactionary gang of the Legislature have seen fit to criticize the contribution which Mr. Charles Sumner Bird made to that glimmer of sanity in Republican policy last fall—namely, the plank in favor of a constitutional convention.

By attributing the adoption of this plank wholly to Mr. Bird they do Mr. Bird both too much and too little honor. Mr. Bird undoubtedly had no power to compel the Republicans to adopt this plank in their platform. The Republicans sought to obtain the great mass of Progressive votes in this State. These votes had outnumbered the reactionary drags of the Republican party as represented by the old gang, of which these foolish members of the Legislature are among the minions. Mr. Bird had power to force the Republicans to adopt this one respectable plank in their platform only because he represented these thousands of Progressive voters.

When they insult Mr. Bird's part in the Republican platform last year they insult every Progressive vote cast for Mr. McCall. When they called Mr. Bird a Democrat and not a Republican they so nominated every Progressive whose vote made it possible for Mr. McCall to be elected.

These shallow-pated gentlemen do not understand it, of course, but all the intelligent citizens in the State DO understand perfectly that Mr. McCall and the Republican party had no more hope of being elected this year without that Constitutional Convention plank and the support of the Progressives upon it than these complaining legislators have hope of ever becoming legislators.

Under the influence of such trifling persons, the Republican Legislature is making a pretty bad record this year; a record which is very liable to plague Governor McCall at the next election. Under the rule of consolidating commissions there is now in full bloom a conspiracy to enslave the powers of the Public Service Commission and of the Gas and Electric Light Commission. This is an old scheme which has been worked several times in Massachusetts by the corporation lobby. If such things as this inevitably make the return of the Republican party to power, how long will the intelligent citizens of this State think the people of the State will tolerate their continuance in power?

THE DREAMER

Weighing the Earth

Man Can Do It Without Getting Off It Because His Mind Can Go Where His Body Cannot, and He Can Weigh Moons, Suns and Stars, Too.

By Garrett P. Serviss

THERE is nothing more educative to a mind thirsting for knowledge, or more delightful to an mind endowed with healthful powers of imagination, than the consideration of the means by which little man, dwelling on his isolated earth-ball, which is flying through empty space like a projectile, has managed not only to measure the spinning globe, but to weigh it, as easily as if he could take it in his hands, and to balance it against the moon and the sun, and so weigh them also!

There are two things which are measured in what we call weight. These are the mass, or quantity of matter, of which the weighed body consists, and the attraction of the earth which draws the body downward by pulling upon it.

This attractive force is gravitation, and all bodies, however large or however small, possess it in proportion to their mass. If you hold up a marble and let it go it falls toward the center of the earth. Everybody knows that, but everybody does not always remember that the earth at the same time falls toward the marble!

Only, as the marble is almost infinitely small in comparison with the earth, the amount of motion that its attraction imparts to the earth is immeasurable, except to mathematicians.

Now if, instead of dropping the marble, you put it on a cable it will press on the cable with a certain stress which we call its weight and which can be measured in terms of standard weights that we have adopted for convenience, such as pounds and ounces.

The same pull of the earth which causes the marble to fall if unsupported, gives it the property of weight when it is prevented from falling. But, it is evident, from what we have said above, that if the earth rested on the table and the marble attracted it from below its volume, or solid content, in round numbers, 22,500,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Multiply that by the weight of a single cubic foot of the earth's substance and you would get the total weight, provided that every cubic foot of the earth were of equal density or possessed equal mass.

Just there the difficulty arises. The earth is not everywhere equally dense. It is much denser within than at the surface. In order to make our calculation true we must find out what the mean, or average, density of the earth is.

Several methods have been tried. One of the most interesting, though not the best, is to weigh a mountain against the earth, on the supposition that the material of so large a mass as a mountain must be much nearer the average density of the earth than is that of a cubic foot taken from any part.

In order to weigh a mountain against the earth it is only necessary to observe carefully how much the attraction of the mountain deflects a plumb line. The experiment was long ago tried with an isolated mountain in Scotland, and it was found that the density of the mountain was far less than that of the earth as a whole.

A much better plan is the "Cavendish method." This consists, essentially, of comparing the attraction of a lead ball of known mass with the attraction of the earth. In practice, for the sake of getting increased effects, two large lead balls are used to attract two small balls, which are fastened at the ends of a horizontal rod suspended at its middle point by a thin wire.

The force necessary to twist the wire is first carefully ascertained. Then the large balls are brought near the small ones, and their attraction upon the small balls causes them to move sufficiently to twist the suspending wire.

The attractive force of the large balls upon the small ones is ascertained. But the attractive force of the earth upon the same balls (the small ones) is already known from their weight.

Accordingly, the ratio of the experiment shows the ratio of the earth's attraction to that of the large balls. In the latest experiments the small balls were of gold, a quarter of an inch in diameter, and the large ones of lead, three or four inches in diameter, while the suspending wire consisted of a fibre of quartz.

Further calculations show how the mean density of the earth compares with that of lead—it is about half as great, or a leaden earth would weigh twice as much as the real earth. A cubic foot of substance having the mean density of the earth would weigh about 32 pounds. Multiply that by the number of cubic feet in the earth, given above, and you will find that the "weight" of this globe of ours is 6,860 quintillions of tons!

Here Is Some Good News That Not One of America's 13,219,759 Stout Women Can Afford to Miss.

Infallible Science, Which Abhors Error, Now Turns to the Relief of Fleeshy Persons by Correcting Mistakes in Their Clothing. Joyous News for the "Stouts." Two Whole Pages of This Dressmaking Discovery in Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

What is the fat woman's dream? To be less stout, of course. But that's only a dream. She wakes up and another fat day begins.

But what is the fat woman's ambition, yes, her firm determination? To LOOK less stout.

So she plots and plans with her dressmaker to achieve the desired end. With what result? Alas!

How often does one see a stout woman—a "forty-four" for instance—clad in a new gown and added misery because she knows—too well she knows—that her efforts to be fashionable have only accentuated her generous lines! And in this season of short skirts and panner effects, too.

Scene in any Boston home. Mrs. Blank to Mrs. Dash: "I met Jenny on Beacon street just as I came in and you SHOULD HAVE SEEN HER. She had on that new suit that she has been worrying about so, and I don't wonder. Actually, she looks bigger than ever. I told her it was becoming, but I know she wasn't. I was just being nice about it. And she is so anxious to have Fred think she looks well. She's only 32 years old but her waist is 38 inches around if it's an inch. It's too bad. Jenny's such a dear, too. Why can't dressers be made up for fat women, don't you think?"

"NONSENSE!" says Science, "of course they can. Science can do anything. Science builds bridges and tunnels under rivers and maps out the stars and everything. A problem of fat persons and clothes. How simple!"

And now comes Alfred Malsin, M. E., via tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN. Mr. Malsin is a Mechanical Engineer. He declares—in two pages of print, with numerous charts and figures to explain his arguments—that the laws of physics, optics, color and mathematics can be applied to the clothes of stout persons so as to hide glaring defects and make them seem less stout.

It is a matter of look or feminine taste or money or anything but science, pure science. Mr. Malsin gathers a from statistics that there are in these United States today 13,219,759 women over 15 years of age. Of this number 40 per cent, or 13,219,759 women, are stout—either stout all over or stout in some one part of their bodies that their symmetry is destroyed.

And these 13,000,000 or so stout women cry—or rather shriek—for becoming clothing. So Mr. Malsin, a Mechanical Engineer and graduate of a German Polytechnic Institute, has tackled the problem scientifically.

How did he come out? It seems incredible, but Mr. Malsin says:

"The scientific design and construction of clothes for stout women along the lines I am explaining in this series of articles makes it possible for them to wear ALMOST ANYTHING THEY PLEASE. AND STILL LOOK MODEST. Plaids, figured fabrics, over-drapes and even the most elaborate trimming can be worn by stout women when they are properly combined and arranged."

And how? Ah, by the application of optical and mathematical laws, all very clearly explained in this Mechanical Engineer. Why, he even measured 4,500 fat women himself in securing information upon which to proceed.

Enough said! Stand not between the stout woman and her Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow at your peril.

"How very interesting—for the fat women," observes Miss Svelte, "but I'm not fat. But I desire all the pretty effects I can get in my clothes. What of me, pray?"

Ah, Dear Miss Svelte. Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN will contain a full page of LUCILE. And the bulk of the page is given to a beautiful picture of a girl in one of the newest Spring dresses for evening wear, "showing the characteristic wide skirts," as the text reads. With this goes some color-phot by "Lucile" herself. And plenty of other fashion lines.

A vivid war article on how soldiers are sent into battle drugged by ether. Clara Morris on slugs and when it turns to real love, a discussion of the serious problem by Mme. Valentine de St. Paul of Paris, she's a grand-niece of the great poet Lamartine, by the way—these are other features of tomorrow's AMERICAN.

Tomorrow being the first Sunday in the month it brings free with every copy of the Sunday AMERICAN a copy of the AMERICAN SUNDAY MONTHLY MAGAZINE. On the front cover is a Harrison Fisher picture. She's in the picture as a dear, sweet, wholesome little girl. She is called "Spring Blossom" and she is typical of the Spring time of year and youth.

Turn over pages of the Magazine one sees a picture—two men and two girls and one of the girls staring at the other, "electric with stormy emotions, flashing with dynamite anger." This is an illustration accompanying a story by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow. Interesting situation, what!

There are absorbing instalments of "The Kingdom of the Blind," by E. Phillips Oppenheim and of Arthur B. Reeve's "The Ear in the Wall." This is the tercentenary of Shakespeare's death and curiously enough the title of a story by Virginia Terhune Van de Water in the Sunday MAGAZINE is "A Twentieth Century Lear." So you see that art and literature are delightfully blended in the magazine, which is simply given to you when you buy your AMERICAN tomorrow.

All the news of the day from Villa to Verdun. Order tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN from your newsdealer NOW, for New England's share of those 13 million stout women will certainly be determined to buy your SUNDAY AMERICAN unless you have ordered one in advance.

ORDER IT NOW.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Mischievous Efficiency
Of course the scientists, in hunting for something that was unfit for food, had to pick out the option, the solitary American edible that has not increased in price.

Campus or Class Room?
"Harvard Football Captain Starts Campaign to Thrill Music by Writing Songs in College English."—headline. Most of the College that has happened to hear of football games sounded as if it had been invented by Irving Berlin.

No Chance for an Argument
Women's plans may not always be in the home, but it certainly never is at the prize ring.

That Would Fetch It
The only way to get a real prepositional bit through is to attach it as an rider on a bill to increase Congressmen's salaries.

Contributing Factor
The man who gives credit for the increased prosperity to mining conditions doubtless includes the mining of the waters in the war zone, which certainly has boosted the munition trade.
